

Innisfail pathway renewal project set to commence

WALKING and riding will soon be easier in Innisfail thanks to a $550,000 project that will renew five pathway sites across Innisfail.

Cassowary Coast Regional Council Councillor and Asset Sustainability portfolio holder Barry Barnes said that good pathways were important to ensure our residents and visitors had opportunities to walk or cycle for fun or exercise and provide further opportunities to explore Innisfail.

"Council manages footpaths across the entire Cassowary Coast region and planning for renewal of footpaths is an important part of Council's approach to asset sustainability, ensuring we are planning for community's needs within our annual and long-term planning and budgetary processes."

Councillor Barnes also said that the community through the recent Community Scorecard told Council that the community considered local roads, pathways, and cycleways the number one priority for our region.

"Works are expected to commence this week and there will be detours in place for pedestrians and cyclists during works at each site. Signage will be in place to provide awareness of any detours.

"The project will help meet pedestrian and cyclist needs by connecting our roads to the Innisfail town centre, nearby public transport nodes, recreational spaces, and to assist pedestrians to traverse rough terrain."

Five sites across Innisfail will benefit from a renewal program to upgrade pathways, providing an improved user experience.

Site 1 – Bruce Highway – Railway Street to Goondi Hotel – approximately 75-metre-long concrete path renewal

Site 2 – Bruce Highway - Page Park to Commonwealth Hotel – approximately 130-metre-long concrete path renewal

Site 3 – Bruce Highway - Bus Stop near Bunnings to Gladly Street – approximately 80-metre-long exposed aggregate concrete path renewal

Site 4 – Bruce Highway – near the Council Depot – approximately 100-metre-long concrete path renewal

Site 5 – Mourilyan Road (behind East Innisfail State School) – approximately 85-metre-long concrete path renewal

The project is fully funded by Cassowary Coast Regional Council.

Footpath works commencing on Site 1.

THE CCRC WATER PORTAL IS NOW LIVE

AS part of the Smart Water Meter project roll out, the CCRC Water Portal will provide further information to residents who have a smart meter installed on their property and assist in identifying hidden water leaks early, to minimise water wastage and help residents track and manage their water use.

Smart Water Meters record your water use on an hourly basis and transmits this data to Cassowary Coast Regional Council. This data is now accessible to eligible customers via the CCRC Water Portal and gives a more detailed understanding of water usage patterns and helps identify any changes to water use.

Smart water meters enable Council to:

- respond more effectively to water consumption enquiries; and

- identify peak and off-peak water usage times and assist with managing pumping and infrastructure to reduce costs when less water is required.

To view this information visit CCRC Water Portal and register your details. Once registered, your account may take up to two business days to become active. Once active, residents can:

- detect potential leaks early by registering in the online portal and setting up leak alerts;
- develop strategies to reduce their water usage; and
- check their water consumption hourly, daily, weekly, monthly or yearly.

BANYAN PARK BEAUTIFICATION

Cassowary Coast Regional Council is upgrading Banyan Park, including Lions Park, located at the entrance of Tully.

The Park currently has a combination of play equipment, a bus shelter, an undercover area, barbeque, seats and paths. Majority of the features within the Park require refurbishment or renewal. Whilst some assets of the park are iconic and will remain in place, such as the Golden Gumboot, Council wants your feedback to shape the future of Banyan and Lions Park.

Smooth drive for Tully residents with major works complete

Councillor Teresa Millwood with Murray Street in the background.

THE major $1.87 million project to upgrade a key road in Tully is now complete.

Councillor Teresa Millwood thanked the community for their patience whilst these important works were undertaken.

"Murray Street is a key connector road in Tully. During previous wet seasons, the road would experience potholes, required frequent maintenance and had flooding issues. These works have renewed vital infrastructure, improved flood immunity by upgrading drainage, improved safety and access by undertaking intersection changes.

"Tully and the Cassowary Coast is growing, and our region needs the infrastructure and services to accommodate our current residents and to provide for future population growth.

"Creating jobs and supporting Cassowary Coast construction industry was another key focus of the project, with a number of local contractors and Council working together for delivery of the project; and Council would like to thank our staff and contractors for their contribution to the final outcome of this project."

Works undertaken include:

- Replacement/upgrade culverts.
- Installation of kerb and channel.
- Intersection upgrades.
- Renewal of pavement including the installation of asphalt.
- Replacement of the existing water main.

The Murray Street Upgrade project was jointly funded by the Australian Government and Cassowary Coast Regional Council.

Australian Government funding of nearly $1.14 million was provided through the Local Roads and Community Infrastructure (LRCI) and Roads to Recovery (R2R) programs, with Cassowary Coast Regional Council providing the remaining funding of $730,714.

The LRCI program supports councils to deliver priority local road and community infrastructure projects across Australia, while the R2R program improves safety, accessibility, economic and social outcomes by supporting the construction and maintenance of local roads.

Innisfail's driver reviver to trial new location

INNISFAIL'S locally driven driver reviver will trial The Con as a new location after the program closed statewide earlier this year.

In January, the driver reviver at Fred Drew Rest area, located north of Innisfail, was closed along with 22 other sites across Queensland.

Mayor Mark Nolan said the driver reviver is currently led by Queensland Police Service (QPS), in partnership with local volunteers and a necessary service to travellers passing our town.

"Driver reviver is great program and partnership between QPS and local community groups and combats one of the fatal five – driver fatigue.

"Upon hearing about the closure of the site, local community groups reached out to Council to see what solutions could be provided.

"As a short term solution and trial, Council has agreed for the Innisfail driver reviver to run out of The Con for the Easter school holiday period.

"I am happy this program can continue to run within our community," said Mayor Nolan.

Member for Hill Shane Knuth said he was very disturbed when the State Government announced the end of Driver Revivers in the Hill Electorate and across the state.

"I was in the process of launching a petition to save driver revivers because they are a safe place for drivers to pull over, prevents fatigue and saves lives.

"However, Cassowary Coast Regional Council, QPS and local community groups came up with a solution to trial driver reviver at The Con, which will also help bring people into Innisfail.

"We have gone through a number of processes to get here but this is a win win not only for the community but all road users."
